Testimonials

From a GIS Coordinator on campus

As the sole GIS Facilities staff at the University, I believe attending this conference will further develop my technical skills while enhancing our knowledge base around new campus FM technology innovations and shared best practices. CFTA provides practical professional development opportunities and networking with other higher education FM professionals, which are very limited in this state.

Julius Paulo, University of Hawaii

From a Director sending team members

Ohio State prioritizes sending a group of staff to the CFTA conference annually because it is the one place where everyone on the team, whether focusing on GIS, managing facility plans and space data, or managing building documentation, can connect with others doing the same work, learn best practices, and see where managing facilities data is going in the future. My team and I always come back from the conference with lots of ideas that we want to implement and new relationships to help us get there.

Joe Porostosky, The Ohio State University

From an Architect Engineer on campus

I was hooked on BIM after my first CFTA conference. The inspiration, knowledge and visionary information presented at the annual conferences, laid the foundation and developed a road map for the University of Wisconsin - Madison's BIM initiative. CFTA is my go-to for all facilities related technology.

Amy Zabel-Pietz, University of Wisconsin
